Tips for Helping Your Carved Pumpkin Last Longer

TIP #1

Make sure you use a fresh pumpkin

TIP #2

Clean your pumpkin in bleach

1. After carving your pumpkin, rinse it out with water to get rid of excess strings and gunk.
2. Fill a large bucket or tub with three gallons of water.
3. Add three teaspoons of bleach and stir.
4. Dunk in the pumpkin in the solution and hold it down so it will not float. (Be sure to wear water resistant gloves). The entire pumpkin should sit in the solution for two minutes.
5. Remove from the solution and let the pumpkin completely air dry.

TIP #3

Place your carved pumpkin in a tub or large bowl filled with cold water, carved side down.

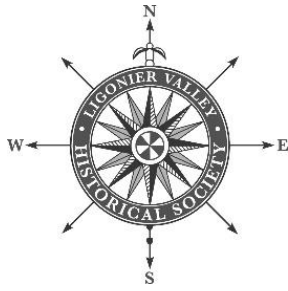

Let it absorb the water for at least 1 hour; however, you can leave it in for up to 8 hours. This will create a firmer pumpkin that will resist dehydration for longer than an untreated pumpkin. Dry the pumpkin completely after soaking.

TIP #4

Seal with petroleum jelly or vegetable oil

On a completely dry pumpkin spread petroleum jelly or vegetable oil inside your pumpkin and around all cut out areas.
